The University

There are few earthly things more beautiful than
A university. It is a place where those who hate
Ignorance may strive to know, where those who Perceive truth may strive to make others know;

Where seekers and learners alike, banded together
In the search for knowledge, will honor thought in
All its finer ways, will welcome thinkers in distress
Or in exile, will uphold ever the dignity of thought
And learning and will exact standards in these things.

They give to the young in their impressionable years
The bond of a lofty purpose shared, of a great Corporate life whose links will not be loosed until They die. They give young people that close companionship for which youth longs, and that chance
Of the endless discussion of themes which are endless,
Without which youth would seem a waste of time.

There are few earthly things more splendid than a University. In these days of broken frontiers and Collapsing values . . . When every future looks somewhat grim, and every ancient foothold has become Something of a quagmire, wherever a university stands,
It stands and Shines;

Wherever it exists, the free minds of men, urged
On to full and fair inquiry, may still bring wisdom
Into human affairs.

Nearly all (309 to be precise) of the senior portraits were shot by W. Patrick Hinely, shown here (by his own doing) in the process of collecting images of his homeland: Florida. This particular one is from Hialeah. He is using (and continues to use) Leica cameras and lenses, the world's best.

As Washington and Lee's basketball team captured another O.D.A.C. crown and a national reputation for college respectability this past winter, senior guard Pat Dennis emerged as the Generals' top hoopster. Dennis capped his collegiate B-ball career by setting a new school record for points scored in a single season at an even 700.

After the final buzzer had sounded at Kean College, thus ending Dennis' superb career, Pat was selected for several high honors. To begin with Pat was named the Most Valuable Player of the Southeast Regional N.C.A.A. Division III Tournament. The O.D.A.C. followed by naming him M.V.P. of the conference. In addition Dennis was selected first team All-American (Div. III) by both the Basketball Weekly magazine and the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Although his W&L basketball days were over, Pat still had some collegiate ball playing left for him as he was selected for the highly regarded Portsmouth Invitational Tournament. The tournament is a series of round-robin playoff games between pick-up teams drawn from the top 64 seniors (in all divisions) in the nation. Although his team lost the series opener, Pat dropped in twelve points. Dennis also played for the Virginia all-stars in a dual with their peers from North Carolina. Finally, and perhaps most exotic of all, Dennis, in early April, played in Mexico City for a Division II and III all-star team representing the United States.

Looking back over the year, Pat expressed a strong appreciation to his friend and valuable team-mate, Mike Wenke. "I definitely could not have done it without him. He created a lot of situations to get me open," Dennis said. Dennis' praise is well placed, for Mike Wenke set a school record in assists this year with 259. Next year Pat will continue his basketball career by playing professionally in Europe.

SWIMMING

Logging 11,000 yards per day between meets and swimming competitively fifty weeks every year point out three things about John Hudson's personality: his perseverance, his love for the water, and, most importantly, the abiding faith that all this rigor will pay off. Quite predictably, this faith, and swimming meets since the age of eight, has wreaked a possibly unmatched dividend for Hudson.

The proud, but self-disciplined, Pennsylvanian has been named All-American seventeen times in his four years at W&L. Added to that, he has set four school records on his own, (the 200, the 500, the 1,000, and the 1650 yards freestyle) and two with the help of his fellow Generals in the four and eight hundred yard freestyle relays.

Hudson led his team well in their attaining of a record smashing 10-1 dual meet tally this year and by capping the season with an impressive tenth place finish in the National College Division swimming championships held at Grinnell College. Added to his preceding three years, Hudson has led Washington and Lee to an enviable 33-9 mark on dual meets and to many self-feeding rumors of the makings of a college level aquatic dynasty right here in Lexington.

Although Hudson is, as Coach Bill Stearns says, "by far and away the best swimmer this school has ever seen," his contributions to W&L are also above sea-level. For one, Hudson, relying on his stern self-regulation, his capacity for objective self-appraisal, his abiding faith in his abilities, and his love of, and thirst for, competition, has made the Dean's List every term in his junior and senior years; a formidable task for a Business Administration major.

Applying his talents of the pool to the realities of campus life, Hudson has been a standout leader by being assistant head dorm counselor. But even with all these personal achievements, the sturdy easterner does not lose sight of his college experience, "I feel that W&L has given me a lot in that I have been able to compete on a high level in athletics and in academics."

Looking back over his four years of explosive swimming, Hudson, who will join the Intelligence apparatus of the U.S. Army upon graduation, explains pensively why he conditioned himself so thoroughly, partly to the exclusion of other activities, "It wasn't all for the personal glory. If somebody else on the team did well, it got me excited and made me want to do better." The articulate photography buff, who hopes to become a swim coach eventually, affirms this sentiment by saying candidly, "The newspaper write ups and the personal congratulations are just icings on the cake." On a final swimming note, the All-American attributes his collegiate success to coach Bill Stearns and to the long-distance assistant coach Lieutenant Colonel Louis P. McFadden.

Tucker, Bovay and Bruch criticize 4th estate

In conclusion your newspaper has once again printed unfounded remarks and resorted to sensationalism. Such erroneous reporting week after week is causing the RtP to join the ranks of Hustler and Midnight Magazine. As evidenced by other student publications on this campus, controversy is not a requisite for quality.

Hopefully in your remaining issues the quality of your stories and accuracy thereof will improve. The W&L community is very much in need of a respectable student-run newspaper of which they may be proud. The RtP owes such respect not only to its readers but also to its heritage.

Sincerely,
John L. Bruch III
Co-Chairman
Contact '77

You are in the position among student groups to be able to stand in front of the proverbial fan with the shovel of proverbial fertilizer aiming at whichever peer group you desire. That position is akin to having your cake (a position of authority in a student group) and eating it too (being able to degrade peer groups). Now since the EC has voted to allow salaries, you will be paid for eating your cake. It is not that I am desiring a piece of the cake, I just want a little less fertilizer and a little more quality in future Ring-tum Phi's.

Bill Tucker, '79

Dear Editor:

I was greatly dismayed by your editorial of last week, in which you incorrectly stated that I had accused the Student Activities Board of abusing study body funds. The use of this second hand information as the basis for an editorial, without even talking to me about the matter, is actually an abuse of your editorial powers.

Mike, I hope that in the future you will follow more acceptable journalistic practices.

Sincerely,
Jack Bovay

Last spring, after the withdrawal of the then newly appointed editor, Joe Fitzgerald, the Publications Board picked sports editor J. Michael Gallagher, a math major with little first hand knowledge of the inner workings of a newspaper, to lead the Ring-tum Phi. The Phi had been losing a lot of prestige over the years for being too inhibited, too staid, and not extensive enough. The rather innocent, "business as usual" appointment of Gallagher would eventually bear a great deal of importance for the 1977-1978 year.

The Phi stood as the catalyst, or at least the amplifier, for the majority of the controversy which deluged the ordinarily quaint and quiet college. Although many claimed the divisive snarling was purely the fault of the newfangled editor, much of this year's controversy had actually been seething beneath the placid surface of W.&L. life. But Gallagher, with his tough minded (at times closed minded) approach to campus issues and anxieties, provided the green light for these undercurrents to explode into the open.

At its base, much of the controversy had nothing to do with Gallagher, his editorial policies, or his staff but emerged after the Ring-tum Phi, through investigative reporting and a lack of deference to perceived campus elites, had set the tone for campus discussion.

The Phi set the tone of controversy in the first issue of the year in a lead article entitled "S.A.B. UNDER FIRE" where news editor Lee Howard quoted charges, to be reported to the Executive Committee, made by Rick Goddard, senior law school representative to the E.C., of funds mismanagement, questionable financial transactions, and high level incompetence and laxness within the Student Activities Board.

The charges were directed particularly at last year's co-chairman Mike Armstrong and John Berley. Amid threats of libel suits by Berley and Armstrong and criticism of the Phi by the newly appointed S.A.B. co-chairman Bill Tucker, Goddard clarified his charges. But with this clarification came new accounting guidelines to make different student organizations fiscally efficient and more responsibly accountable to the E.C. Charlie Hulfish, a co-chairman of this year's S.A.B. also came under attack for his failure to repay promptly a personal loan extended to him by the S.A.B. the previous spring. Goddard, questioning the loan itself and Hulfish's delay in repaying it, moved for the removal of the co-chairman. After revealing his personal problems behind his decision to accept the loan, Hulfish was barely retained by an E.C. vote of 5-4-1.

Also in late September, second year law student Daniel G. Beyer sparked a shortlived controversy by writing a letter to the editor which was caustically derogatory of the undergrads. Beyer's glowing paragraph capped his academic snobism, "I guess the moral of the story is this: at Washington and Lee, boys will be boys but men (and capable women) will be law students." But Beyer loomed as a lone eagle. The students at Lewis Hall did not share his view while several scathing responses, from different segments of the campus, appeared in the following week's letters to the editor column. Within a couple of weeks homecoming diverted students' attention away from Beyer's harsh words.

But even Homecoming Weekend was not exempt from controversy. Just prior to the weekend, a Gallagher editorial discussed rack-dates and common techniques used by upper classmen to attain them. The now notorious 'Rack Date Editorial' spread a wave of resentment throughout the girls' schools leading some feminists at Hollins to mimeograph the article and post it around the Hollins campus. Beneath the reproduced editorials, the feminists added their personal opinion with a one sentence indictment of the 'W.&L. gentleman.'

The incident proved to be a polarizing force between the Ring-tum Phi under Gallagher's leadership and the student body. Many of the students felt Gallagher had acted with no sense of taste while the few 'j.m.g.' backers countered that the anti-traditionalist editor merely reflected upon an embarrassing fact of W.&L. life with college humor.

At this time, the Lexington Police Department entered the act by raiding late night fraternity parties and issuing citations for noise violations. The raids upon the S.P.E. and Fiji houses set off a shouting match between the Inter Fraternity Council with the help of the Ring-tum Phi and the Lexington Police Department. Town-Gown relations became more strained as a Phi Kapp hurled an egg at squad in the middle of an arrest. Pi Kappa Phi was arrested for having a loud party, "gunshots", and "yells". A house brother later felt his firecrackers may have been mistaken for gunshots.

As the police continued to approach the W.&L. community with a hard line attitude, the long and undying faculty debate was laid rest as that particular body favored their retention. The stormy month of October ended turbulently as the 'Nose Knows' column disparaged many students in applying an article in the U. Va. Cavalier to W.&L. about varying degrees of preppyness. More damaging to Gallagher's failing reputation and to the Phi was the Nose's belittling reference of Adair Hutton. The store's manager, Leon Worley, withdrew his $1,800 account from the newspaper thus creating considerable tension and dissension (mainly between Gallagher and Business Manager Peter Goss) among the ranks of the staff-workers. Eventually, Barry Godin, the writer responsible for the controversy and the flagrant personal attacks, had to step down as the venerable nose.

The credibility of campus organizations came under fire once again in November as the Executive Committee called the S.A.B. and the Contact Committee to testify. Apparently, the S.A.B. had not adequately followed the financial guidelines adopted by the E.C. earlier in the year. Rick Goddard felt the S.A.B. should be held for an "automatic honor violation". The source of the investigation, junior representative and S.A.B. ad hoc member Jack Boyay, later claimed that the Ring-tum Phi had misquoted him. Although Rick Goddard affirmed the Phi's understanding of what had said, the junior rep chastised Gallagher for "an abuse of . . . editorial powers." S.A.B. co-chairman Bill Tucker joined Boyay in criticizing the Phi for sensationalism. The S.A.B. found the E.C. sympathetic to its contention that an interval of administrative lag time had occurred between the time of the institution of the accounting guidelines and the time of their actual implementation. Boyay, as ad hoc member, attributed much of this lag to a lack of communications within the activities board and added that treasurer Jim Foreman had done a good job. The investigation into the Contact Committee revealed that the committee had directly violated an E.C. mandate, to liquidate all assets at the end of an academic year, by maintaining a secret $500 account over the summer. The committee also held galas at the student body expense. Last year's Contact co-chairman John Bruch defended the dinners and the summer accounts as standard operating procedure, disputed to no avail the amount of money in the balance, and castigated the Phi claiming Gallagher's editorial policies were causing the paper to join the ranks of "Hustler and Midnight Magazine." The E.C. rejected a Goddard motion 8-1 to make unapproved parties an honor violation. The I.F.C. joined the Contact debate by passing a motion to require a year-end balance sheet and list of expenditures to determine what, if any, contribution the fraternities would make to the program for the next year. With Gallagher using the student body constitution to exert editorial pressure for E.C. action, the E.C. passed a motion the next week to require its approval for all campus organizational blasts and that Contact would have to divvy up remaining cash balances at the end of each year on a percentage of contribution basis between the E.C. and the I.F.C. with Contact holding onto the remaining percentage attributable to outside contributions.

The Phi scored a major victory for W.&L. students after Thanksgiving break by debating the acclaimed right of the police to withhold relevant arrest information pertaining to fraternity parties. The implementation of certain guidelines designed for the release of more police information all but ended the town-grown frat music battle.

The new year started off briskly with a short but heated intellectual debate sparked by a Phi assertion that the university indirectly supported apartheid in South Africa by holding large endowment investments in american multi national corporations which are heavily invested, and therefore providing economic sustenance, in that oppressive nation. President Huntley quickly resolved the controversy by stating officially, "In my view, it would not be feasible or wise for the university to organize itself in such a way as to formulate or implement ethical, political, or diplomatic policies through its investment management." January closed with the E.C. passing a modified version of a pre-jetted proposal of sophomore representative Steve Abraham which mandated open meeting until a vote of all campus organization meetings.

Student government controversy rocked the campus in February as the E.C. called in Student Control Committee chairman Jim McNider to testify about certain procedures. While Ring-tum Phi editor Mike Gallagher criticized the S.C.C. for being too zealous and impinging upon the rights of the accused as dictated by the U.S. Supreme Court case Miranda v. Arizona, McNider counter attacked the paper for defying a Publications Board order to confront a per-against whom allegations have been made. The main result of the E.C. investigation was the request, and McNider's compliance with the request, for the S.C.C. to clarify its powers and procedures along with the delineation of the accused's rights. Fancy Dress heralded the end of the 'Hulfish' saga. The former S.A.B. co-chairman refused to leave campus after an honor violation. Neither the E.C. or the administration felt it had the power to remove the obstinate Hulfish (remaining on campus to sell F.D. tee shirts into which he had invested $500). Gallagher criticized both parties for inaction. The article of the crash landing of Hulfish's turbulent and aborted W.&L. career touched a less than cordial exchange between the Ring-tum Phi and The Executive Committee. E.C. president Jim Underhill, along with other committee members, felt that Gallagher had been editorially irresponsible and subsequently had violated the confidence of the Honor trial. Members of the Phi staff answered the allegation by pointing out that the story dealt with events after the trial and not with the trial itself. The Phi staff countered that it had exercised sufficient restraint in not revealing the details of the trial which had been made known to many students by E.C. members in direct violation of the White Book.

The winter drew to a close with the rattling discovery by Delta Tau Delta rep to the I.F.C. Bill Thistlethwaite of a 'Red Square' machine composed of SAE, Phi Kapp, Beta, Phi Delta, DTD, KA, and SNU. Thistlethwaite discovered the "secretive" organization when he realized that Delt president Biff Martin had participated in I.F.C. elections without his house brothers knowledge or approval. The 'Red Square Machine' captured six of seven top I.F.C. posts (Martin getting one of them). The politics gave way to new elections and Martin's resignation from his newly attained post. The attacks directed toward the machine were not directed toward any malevolence inherent in the machine but for its lack of being representative of all fraternities. Excluded fraternities exhibited considerable resentment toward the machine and tested out the possibility of an anti-Red Square coalition.

As this yearbook goes to press the traumatically climatic controversy, the Rank-tam Poon incident continues to unfold in all its complexity and publicity. The student body remains divided over relevant questions concerning the Gallagher's humour magazine and his subsequent dismissal. In this growing atmosphere of distrust and dislike, the budding critics and the knee jerk supporters of jmg may overlook the impact (e.g. the right of the accused) of Gallagher's year.

Fini! Fine! Am Ende! Terminado! Done! Unbelievable! Another year of W&L madness compiled into 300 pages. Well maybe not all madness, but nonetheless a maddening experience to put it all together. Remember freshman camp? Barely huh. Or Charlie Hulfish. A beer-less Homecoming. The Four Tops . . . WOW. Penn Plummer and Dick Miller. Grain. The Rank Tam-Poon. Labs. Another losing football season. Rush. An aborted concert. Drug busts. Fancy Drunk. Pat Hinely . . . $6 please. The B—— that gave you a "Dog". Losing to U.Va for the first time. Country parties. Exams. Goshen . . . often. Hollins. Sweet Briar . . . more often. A long winter. Snow, snow and more snow. The Lexington police. The Red Square "machine". All those soul groups. Fraternity hypocrisy. Booze. Khaki pants. A newfangled co-op. "We gotcha comin' back?" Lacrosse games. Rack dates. The Pub Board . . . ha, ha. Controversy and Mike Gallagher. Sound typical? Well maybe you've hit on something. The set remains the same, only the faces change. In any event most of what makes W&L is here in this book; a positive and tasteful reflection of the 1977-1978 school year. (For those interested, the DTD picture is on page 172.) Hope you enjoy it.

Thanks to the many who helped make this book a reality. Thanks to Ned McDonnell for his written pieces; Howie Collier for his faculty drawings; John Cole for his cartoons; our patrons; Stuart Craig, Greer Barriault and Neil Sheehan for the many hours in the darkroom; Mike and Dave down at Andre Studios; and to Carole Chapell for her typing skills and a cheerful attitude.

Special thanks to Pat Hinely for his patience, cooperation and general (in) sanity; to C.L.C for the seminars, bingbos, lots of good music and God forbid . . . Tracer; to the pumpkin cutters, Boice, Va, Doug, Andy and Harry T. (sorry but that picture never came off); to Mrs. Cook for a well-learned lesson; the boys in Zollmanville for being themselves and putting up with me; and finally to Charlie Garrison and all the people at Hunter Publishing Co. for another fine job.

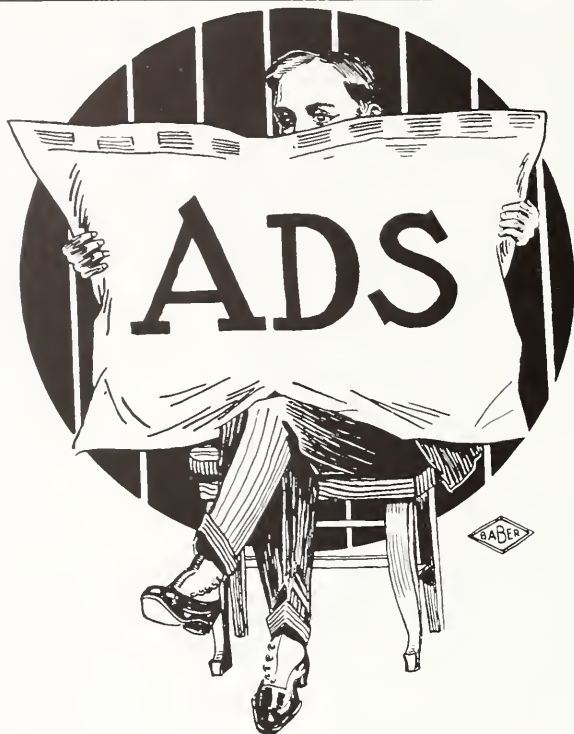

Well Shoe, its all yours now. Have fun with it.

"SUCCESS"
ROTC ENHANCES YOUR CIVILIAN CAREER
THROUGH:

Extended Officer experience followed by your civilian career Field.
 Reserve Component opportunities coupled with a civilian job.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES — Numerous career fields are available to choose from, depending upon your qualifications. They include: Personnel Management, Finance, Engineer, Armor, Maintenance Management, Personnel Administration, Education, Comptroller, Chemical, Foreign Area Officer, Communications, Transportation, Procurement, Infantry, Law Enforcement, and many others.

CHALLENGING ADVENTURE TRAINING — While participating in the Army ROTC Program at Washington and Lee, you will be able to participate in voluntary, adventure activities such as: Rappelling, Skydiving, Spelunking, Skiing, Canoeing, Hiking, Patrolling, Biking, Orienteering, Soaring, Water Survival, and many others. Activities are scheduled at times that are convenient to the students.

PROFESSIONAL DEGREES — LAW OR MEDICINE — Educational delays are available after completion of your undergraduate degree so that you can complete Law or Medical School. You can utilize your professional degree in the active army if you are selected for active duty, or practice on your own while serving in a reserve component.

FINANCIAL BENEFITS — In addition to Four-Year Scholarships, Army ROTC offers One-, Two-, and Three-Year Scholarships for which all cadets are eligible to compete. Even if you are a non-scholarship cadet, you will receive over $2500 during the last two years of the Four Year Program. Upon commissioning as a 2nd Lieutenant and selection for active duty, your starting salary will be over $11,000.

LEADERSHIP/MANAGEMENT TRAINING — In Army ROTC, you learn not only to manage people, but money and materials as well. You will learn to make more important planning decisions than most young executives. You will develop the qualities that not only the Army wants, but the civilian market: Self-discipline, Responsibility, Maturity, and Leadership
